

Tasmanian Transport and Logistics Workforce Advisory Group

Nominations are invited from Tasmanian transport and logistics industry representatives for membership of the Tasmanian Transport and Logistics Workforce Advisory Group. The Tasmanian Advisory Group will provide input to a National Advisory Group established as part of an Australian Transport Commission program of national reform to transport policy.

The Tasmanian Advisory Group is required, through collaboration between government and industry, to:

- Identify current and future workforce planning and skills priorities and issues,
- Develop effective, realistic solutions and programs to address workforce issues including where possible short, medium and long term goals and actions;
- Provide advice on current successful workforce programs which could be rolled out to other areas, including nationally;
- Assist with the delivery of workforce solutions and programs;
- Consult with transport and logistics industry and government stakeholders;
- Assist with promoting awareness of industry workforce issues and solutions;
- Network and share strategies, programs, ideas and resources with other State/Territory Advisory Groups, the National Advisory Group and the workforce planning and skills working group.
